

Osceola Rod And Gun Club Elects Officers

The Osceola Rod and Gun club held its annual meeting and election of officers Tuesday evening in the club rooms at the Hotel Osceola.

The following officers were re-elected to their offices: President, Donald Nelson; Vice President, Art Steinmetz; Secretary, Ollie Eicher. Vernon Neidermire was elected treasurer to replace George Nelson in the election.

Following the business meeting and election of officers, the guest-speaker, Norman Stone, district game manager from Grantsburg and his assistant Mr. Lewis Tiews gave a very interesting description of the Crex Meadows project near Grantsburg. Mr. Stone dwelled at length on the the history, acquisition and development of the large flowage tract and what is being done to induce wildlife to habitat there, especially for the hunter of this area. Interest in his talk was shown through the numerous interruptions by questions from the members present. At the end of his talk he showed beautiful colored slides of the district and of the game birds nesting there. His information was very much appreciated by the entire group of about 75 members who turned out for the evening.

Immediately following the showing of the pictures, the Gun Club's chefs served another of their delicious oyster stews to all members and guests present. According to President Nelson, 10 gallons of oysters were served. This is to be the last oyster stew of the spring season.
